Pushing everything saide, he said to one of the party, "Have you seen the Nasby popers?" "No, I have not," was the reply; "who is Nasby?" "There is a chap out in Ohio," returned the President, "who has been writing a series of letters in the newspapers under the signature of 'Petroleum V. Nasby.' Some one sent me a pamphiet collection of them the other day. I am going to write 'Pe-troleum' to c me down here, and I intend to tell him if he will communicate his talent to me, I will swap places with him!" Thereupon he arose, went to a drawer in his dask, and taking out the "letters," he sat down and read one to the company, finding in their enjoyment of it the tempe-rary excitement and relief which another man would have found in a glass of grog The instant he had ceased the book was

A STORY OF ABBREW JOHNSON. Mr. Lincoln told us this story of " Andy lohnson," as he was was familiarly in the habit of calling him. It was a few weeks prior to the Baltimore Convention, before would be the nomines for the Vice Presi-dency. He said: "I had a visit last night from Colonel Moody, 'the fighting Methodist parson, as he is called in Tennesse. He is on his way to the Philadelphia Conference, and, being in Washington over night came up to see me. He told me," he con-tinued, "this story of Andy Johnson and General Buell, which interested me in-tenzely. Colonel Moody was in Nashville the day it was reported Bueil had decided to evacuate the city. The rebels, strong y reinforced, were said to be within two day's march of the capital. Said Moody, 'I went in search of Johnson, at the edge of the evening, and found him at his office, closeted with two gent'emen, who were walking the floor, one on each side of him. As I entered, they retired, leaving me alone with Johnson, who came up to me manifesting intense feeling and said: 'Moody, we are sold out! Buel as a traitor! He is going to evacuate the city, and in less toan forty-eight hours we shall all be in the hands of the rebels' Then be commenced pacing the floor again twisting his hands, and chafing like a caged tiger, utterly insensible to his friend's entreaties to beceme calm. Suddenly be turned and said: 'Moody, can you pray' maticals

The Proprietors of the New York Messean of Anatony have determined, regardless of enjoure, to its ase free (for the bonest of suffering humanity, and instantly both went down upon impressing in the descent of suffering humanity, and instantly both went down upon its proposition of the condition of Manhood, Indigestion, weakness or Description, Imposuncy, Loss of Marriage and its imposuncy and Marriage and instructive in great form of Marriage and its imposuncy and Marriage and its imposuncy and instructive in great in their knees at opposite aides of the room. As the prayer became fervent, Johnson began to respond in true Methodist style. Presentily he crawled over on his hands and knees to Moody's side, and put his arm over him, manifesting the deepest emotion. Closing the prayer with a hearty 'Amen!' from each they arose. Johnson took a long breath, and said, with emphasis, 'Moody, I feel batter!' Shortly afterward he asked, 'Will you stand by me!' 'Cartainly, I will,' was the answer. 'Well, Moody, I can depend the said Johnson to their knees at opposite aides of the room. As the prayer became fervent, Johnson began to respond in true Methodist style. "Well Moody, I can depend upon you; you are one in a hundred thousand! He then commenced pacing the floor again. Suddenly he wheeled, the current of his thought having changed, and said, 'Oh ! Moody, I don't want you to think I have become a religions man because I saked you to pray. I am sorry to say it, but I am not, and have never pretended to be religious. No one knows this better than you; but Moody, there is one thing about it-I do believe in Almighty God! And I believe also in the Bible, and I say I'll be damned if Nashville shall be surrer-And Nashville was not surrendered. The Road Hill Burder-Additional Developments. We have already published an account of the appearance in a London Court of Miss Constance Kent, to confess to having murdered her half brother five years ago. The following additional facts in relation to the fearful tragedy and singular con-fession we take from the London Star of the 5th:

brought before the magistrates at Trow-bridge, and an extraordinary scens took place. The evidence given at the previ-ous investigation was again gone into so far as it related to Miss Kent and the mising of her nightdress. Miss Gream and and the Rev. Mr. Wagner, were then called. The former, at the commencement of her examination, hoped the bench would not press her to divulge private matters which had been confided to her in the capacity of a mother acting confidentially to a daughter; and the Rev. Mr. Wagner when called, positively refused to make known what had been confided to him in confession. The questions of the magistrates however elicited these facts: Miss Kent, three weeks ago, confessed to Mr. Wagner that she had murdered her brother. Miss Gream having heard of this, sent for her, and pointed out to her the sin of which she had been guilty. Miss Kent then confessed to her that she took her brother from his cot, while he was sleeping, carried him out of the house by the draw-ing room window, and murdered him is the water closes. The deed was committed with a raxor which she had stolen from her father's dressing case. She was in her night dress and admitted that she afterwards stole one of the night-dresses from the dirty clothes-basket, as hinted at in the evidence. Further details were, of course, prevented from being made public by the resolution to which Miss Gream and Mr. Wagner had arrived. The bench, however, committed the prisoner for trial at the next Williabire assins, which will be held at Salisbury. The calm demeaner of the prisoner never once gave way during the whole of the protracted investigation,

Booth's Body Again. A correspondent of The News, who, by way of illustration, spoke of the disfigure-ment of Booth's lifeless remains as rumor told the tale, now says:

"For the konor of the country, I am glad to say, there is no truth in the shocking tale. Booth's body was buried with-cut disfigurement. It was buried in secret and in the night, and no stone marks, or ever will mark the spot—but this was the choice of his 'amily. The body was given to them. They had it carried far away to

We have competent authority for saying that the statement just now going the rounds of the press, that Rev. George E. Day, of Lane Seminary, Ohio, is soon to take the chair of Didactic Theology in Yale Theological Seminary, is a mistake. There is no foundation for any such report.—N.
